In memory of my beloved father Joseph M Finnegan and other victims and survivors of the only special needs shelter in Collier County during Hurricane Irma. This book is a compilation of Illuminated Letters Michelle Finnegan learned how to create during a 3-day workshop at her church taught by Valerie Weilmuenster, which Michelle signed up for after the memorial services and burial of her father just to try getting out of her house and out of her broken state of grief. Michelle had been her beloved father's primary caregiver for years after two mini strokes landed him in a wheelchair and on oxygen. While most people were looking forward for the memorial services to be over so they could "get back to life" Michelle's life was not just consumed with the grief of losing a loved one, but also her purpose and daily activity ceased to exist. What started as a hope to create space to figure out how to rebuild her life, Michelle realized her purpose of being her father's care giver became a testament to her faith and a reminder of why and how we believe there is life after death. Her father's faith was shared with Michelle and provided her the ability to see it shine through even the darkest of places to refocus and redefine what is important and illuminate a path to the future with words, against which there is no law.
